Your Patient Is Still Your Patient

Your Patient, Our Care

Care doesn't stop when your patients leave your office. You want to ensure they have the best care to fit their needs, even when at home, which is why you need a partner you can trust.

Transitioning Care, Improving Lives.

Your Patient Is Still Your Patient

Is Home Healthcare Appropriate For Your Patient?

Whether your patient is dealing with a new diagnosis or the exacerbation of a current condition, consider the following when assessing their need for home health.

Does your patient:

- Have chronic pain or limited mobility?
- Call or visit their physician frequently?
- Frequently miss physician appointments?
- Have trouble adhering to their medication or treatment regimen?
- Have issues with balance, putting them at a higher risk for falls?
- Have difficulty leaving their home?
- Have two or more hospitalizations in the past twelve months?

What Your Patient Will Receive

A comprehensive assessment resulting in a treatment plan that will be overseen by their physician.

The treatment plan will include:

- A fall risk assessment and home safety evaluation.
- Education on all of their medications and potential side effects.
- Education on their medical condition and methods for self management.
- Communication with their physician on their progress toward their treatment goals.
- Skilled nursing and/or therapy treatment.
